Thermal Care of the Neonate

The first MANNERS Neonatal Annual Report, due to be published in January 2005, shows a high rate of hypothermia in preterm babies ≤ 28 weeks. This finding coincides with the recent release of the CEMACH presentation package of the report on Project 27/28, which included similar messages.

The purpose of this meeting is to review the evidence and discuss management and prevention. It is relevant for all professionals involved in perinatal care.

Speakers: Dr Andy Ewer Consultant Neonatologist
Judy Moore Clinical Education Specialist
